“My intention for this home was to design a sanctuary that takes advantage of the views of pristine conservation land beyond Old Harbour Cove. I wanted to bring these natural elements indoors with rattan walls, oiled oak floors, textures, and colors that connect with the water, flora, and sky.”

A STUDY IN NATURE

Designer Lisa Kahn-Allen found her inspiration for the study in this Naples, Florida, waterfront property through a small collection of vintage glass floats, the kind used to keep fishing nets buoyant. The beautiful greens and blues of the sea glass anchor the color scheme, helping achieve a design congruent with its surroundings. Woven raffia on the walls echoes the textures of the landscape’s trees and grasses. French doors lead out to the pool. Tranquility is the result—this is a true sanctuary. BY MELISSA C. GILLESPIE
